WAR INEVITABLE

The conviction that war is on the horizon is not to be interpreted as a surrender to the influences of pessimism. In reality, it involves an honest facing of the facts. War is inevitable because in the western theatre Italy, in the words of Mussolini, has an old and a new account to settle with Ethiopia, and in the eastern sphere of operation Japan is obviously determined to wage war against China.

Mussolini, while sending twenty thousand additional troops to North Africa, barks taunts at England which, among all nations, from the viewpoint of the Duke, has the least right to profess to be scandalized by the course adopted by the Italian government. And it is quite true, as Mussolini so pertinently testifies that Britain has built up the greatest empire in the world by exploiting others whenever the occasion arose by just such frontier incidents as those that have recently occurred between Italy and Ethiopia and that are now to be made the cause of war of aggression.

But, while Italy may taunt Britain she will carefully refrain from the overt word or act. It is one thing to fight Ethiopia and quite another to fight Britain. Italy will discreetly confine her fighting to a pitifully weak opponent and will dignify with the term of war an action which should be more accurately classified as thievery.

Similar ideals, or lack of them, motivate Japan's operations in China, where troops are on the march and a clash seems to be only a matter of time. Here, too, many specious reasons are advanced but when analyzed, they may all be resolved into one, which is nationalism.

'GHOST' YET VERY MUCH IN EVIDENCE

SACRAMENTO, June 22.—UP—The California National Guard unit at Eureka today was ordered to prepare for instant movement into the riot-torn lumber mill zone south of the city.

The order was dispatched following a bloody rioting at the Holmes Eureka Lumber company plant yesterday in which one man was shot to death and ten others were injured in a conflict between 200 strikers and a hundred of police. Police Chief George Laithfield was one of the victims suffering a severe beating.

FEAR MORE TROUBLE

Humboldt county authorities anticipated the Governor's office tonight that they feared the situation might yet get beyond local control.

The sheriff office feared large numbers of outside lumberjacks

Three U. S. Army Fliers Saved In Leap From Plane

VISALIA, June 22.—UP—Visalia County officers searched for three unidentified CCC enrollees today in the hope of clearing up the death last night of Alexander Casteneda, 25, Lindsay, from injuries received in a week ago.

District Attorney Walter C. Haight and the principals in the street battle that ended when Casteneda was hit on the head with an automobile crank had been tentatively identified as CCC men.

Officers were not brought into the case until yesterday when court democratic Congressmen said the day that bills drafted by "brain trusters" from now on would be studied closely and rewritten, if that was considered necessary.

Senator Adams (D., Colo.) said

there was a "growing revolt against the 'brain trusters' legislative drafts," and he added that since the NRA decision by the sumittees were making a special them within constitutional limits.

NEW YORK, June 22.—UP—George and Alfred De Meo, two young Portuguese immigrants, escaped unharmed late today from their monoplane in which they had hoped to make a nonstop flight to Rome, crashed on taking off from Floyd Bennett field.

He confided he attacked at least 16 persons in the lot before pulling down.

A moment later the fliers crawled from the wreckage, unseated, and walked unaided though wildly frightened, back to the hangar in which the plane had been stored.

CLIPPER SHIP FLIES BLIND TO PORT HERE

ALAMEDA, June 22—UP—Zooming blindly out of a cloudless blue sky, Pan American Airways' blind silver air explorer, Pan American Clipper, landed on San Francisco's bay today, completing a round-trip flight from California to Japan today island to Honolulu.

The ship landed at 12:10 P. M. PST, 18 hours and 40 minutes after soaring from Pearl Harbor, Honolulu, through the smoky haze of a cone volcano.

SUCCESSFUL HOP

Its landing signalled successful completion of the second major flight project in the air line's exploratory work preparatory to inauguration of regular air service and mail schedules from California to Canton, China.

The hop carried it from California to Honolulu, from Honolulu to Midway and return and then back to its Alameda terminal, from where huge luxury williness of the future will take off for the Orient, shedding days from passenger and mail schedules and forging new links in American commerce with the Far East.

SECOND VICTORY

It was the Clipper's second victory over innumerable elements and advanced America's commercial aviation frontier another 1,500 miles into the Pacific. After reaching its Sand Island terminal in the Midway group, the Clipper flew on past innumerable across the International date line.

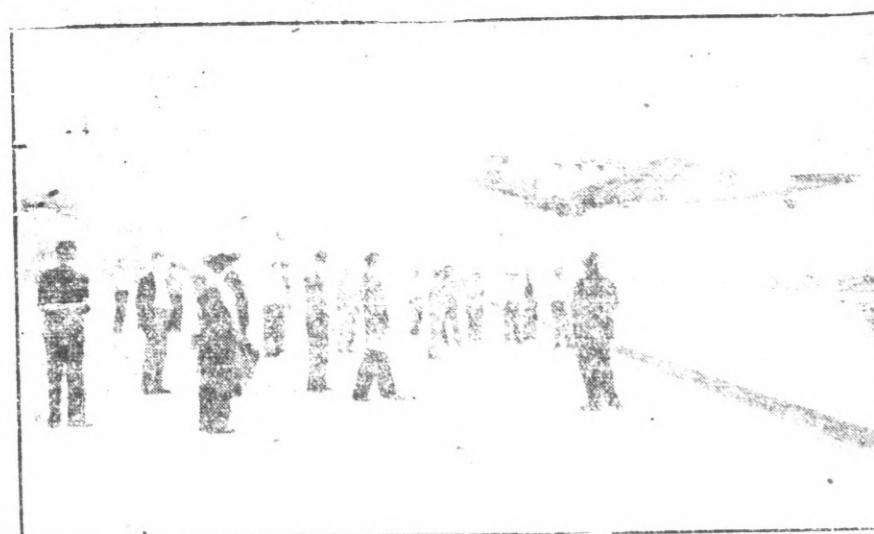

Capt. Edwin C. Musick and his crew of five men made the first round-trip flight between California and Honolulu in April, shattering all records for the East-West hop to Honolulu, previously held by the U. S. Navy's sesquiplane patrol unit.

The most spectacular phase of today's hop was the Clipper's blind landing, simulating zero visibility by closing the pilot's cabin with canvas. Capt. Musick and the ship's navigators followed a previously rehearsed routine and landed the Clipper perfectly. The landing, as were the rehearsals, was a convincing demonstration of the fibers' ability to land on San Francisco Bay under heavy fog or storm conditions.

New airlines were explored on the hop from Honolulu. The Clipper soared to an 11,000 foot altitude two hours after leaving Pearl Harbor and maintained a dizzy elevation for the entire route. The trip was flown along a course 400 miles north of the Great Circle Route followed on previous crossings. The course John Lewis, Susan M. Tamm, Warner Moller, Alvin Noville, Earl Olson, Ben Benten, Leroy Schinner, Lewie Stewart, Eugene Salmon and Donald Zook.

RETRACING THE air trail made 25 years ago by Charles K. Hamilton between New York and Camden, N. J., above is Captain E. V. Rickenbacker's plane starting the flight from Floyd Bennett airfield. Hamilton's round trip, longest at the time, took all day and flying time of 3 1/2 hours. Rickenbacker made it in 37 minutes.

LOS ANGELES, June 22—UP—Her repeated refusal to give a court-ordered deposition in connection with the suit brought by her divorced husband, Harry Bannister, over custody of their child, Jane Bannister, 7, resulted today in Ann Harding, blonde film star, being cited for contempt of court. A citation order was issued by Presiding Judge Edward T. Bishop of the superior court.

She was ordered to appear on July 1 to show cause why she should not be adjudged in contempt and to explain why she refused to give a deposition in the case.

JAIL TERM POSSIBLE

If found in contempt, the actress will face a maximum jail sentence of five days with a possible fine, at the discretion of the court.

Another man was injected into the case today when a partial deposition given by Miss Harding Thursday, was introduced in court by Michael J. Luddy, attorney for Bannister.

NEW DIRECTOR

Miss Harding admitted, under question by Luddy in the deposition, that she knew Dudley Murphy, motion picture director.

Asked by Luddy if Murphy had been a guest in her home and if she had accompanied him on trips, she refused to answer, according to the deposition.

SILENT UPON RESIDENCE

Miss Harding also refused to answer questions concerning her residence, either before or after her divorce from Reno, Nev., or at the time the action was pending. She refused to say where Bannister had lived when they first came to California, when Luddy set forth.

The blonde actress also refused to answer questions regarding her property settlement at the time of her divorce. She would not say whether her divorce was in Nevada when she obtained the divorce and failed to name the child.

WASHINGTON, June 22. Wall Street operators who followed the loudest against the Securities and Stock Exchange Acts when they were in the making, now are rooting for them. Any number of their lawyers have advised that the constitutionality of the SEC could be upset by the Supreme Court, but they don't want to challenge it.

"Reckless" brings Jean Harlow and William Powell together for the first time in a melodrama set against the glitter of New York's theatrical life. Miss Harlow has the role of torch singer and dancer and Powell that of the promoter of everything from a flea circus to wrestlers.

"Reckless" is crowded with color, life, beauty, music and gayety. The supporting cast includes such favorites as Branch Rickey, Tom, the millionaire playboy; May Robson as Miss Harlow's grandmother; Ted Healy and Nat Pendleton, supply the majority of the comedy as Powell's constant minions Rosalind Russell, Little Mickey Rooney and Henry Stephenson.

Butterworth, as befuddled and self-easing as ever, finds himself mistaken for Public Enemy No. 2 in "Baby Face Harrington." The story traces the steps whereby a timid clerk becomes labeled a gangster and is hunted by the police. With Butterworth's help, he is transplanted to its new marble palace across the capitol plaza to two antique drapery desks, dating back to the days of Chief Justice John Marshall... Kingfish Huey P. They art worth it. O Lord, to receive glory and honour and power; for thou hast created all things, and for thy pleasure they are and were created." These words from "Revelation" comprise the golden text to be used Sunday, June 23, in all churches of Christ, Scientist, branches of the Mother Church, The First Church of Christ, The First Church of Christ, Scientist, in Boston, Mass.

The subject of the lesson-Sermon will be "The Universe, including Man, Evolved by Atomic Force." Included among the scriptural selections will be: "Howbeit we speak wisdom among them that are perfect; yet not the wisdom of this world, nor of the princes of this world, that come to us; but we speak the wisdom of God in a mystery, even the hidden wisdom, which God ordained before the world unto our glory" (I Corinthians 2:6, 7).

The following passage from the Christian Science textbook, "Science and Health with Key to the Scriptures" by Mrs. Baker Eddy, will also be included: "Eternal things (verities) are God's thoughts as they exist in the spiritual realm of the real. Temporal things are the thoughts of mortals and the unreal, being the opposite of the real or the spiritual and eternal" (p. 337).

YOUR HEALTH

Good Health Necessary in Modern Manner of Active Living

By CLAUD NORTH CHRISMAN, M.D.

HEALTH in its true sense is our ability to enjoy life and promote happiness in those around us. It does not mean that we never suffer pain, or that we are able to be a great success in all directions. We cannot all be great football players or great golfers or great orators, but there is work that we can all enjoy, if we limit our activities to our physical and mental capacities.

There are a great many that combine to promote our good health.

Now, let us fill with more or less suntan.

It has made provisions for the restoration of any organ that has suffered from overuse or accident.

Chemical changes in the body are so designed that when greater strain is placed upon us, more strength is supplied in order to keep up the balance.

If we are called upon suddenly to expend greater energy and power, to run or fight—to do excessive work, nature has provided secretion from the glands that pels up our strength and endurance to permit that work temporarily.

Our Energy Controlled

The glands of internal secretion control in great measure our energy, mind and personality. The active, energetic, optimistic person who laughs his way through life and scatters sunshine wherever he goes has an abundant supply of these secretions. There may be too much, and it will wear out his physical body too early, but he has enjoyed life.

The chronically ailing and worried group, who casts a shadow over his own life and all those who come in contact with him, is not likely to have a good life. His life seems longer both to himself and those around him. Play is one of the necessary things we must have to possess really good health.

The farmer, the miner, the factory worker may experience plenty of exercise at his ordinary duties, but he becomes stale and colorless unless he plays.

There are many ways to play. Our gymnasiums, ball parks, tennis courts, golf courses and play grounds furnish our best and most beneficial sources of play. They relax mental and nervous tension.

No one can play a game without temporarily forgetting himself and his problems. More mental hygiene can be absorbed on a playground or gymnasium floor than can be taught in a thousand lectures. Everyone you play, be it a game, a musical intermission, a dance, or the thousand of things we do that call for more energy, we stimulate the entire system to clean out waste, take in more oxygen and improve our health.

Heredity Really Counts

The limit or ability to have good health depends to a great extent on our heredity. We would accomplish much in the way of general health, if, when we choose a life mate, we would take note of our own grandparents and those of the husband or wife-to-be.

The children of those whose grandparents suffered from epilepsy, insanity, chorea, even from a mean grumpy disposition and many other conditions can not be expected to possess abundant good health.

The strenuous competitive struggle for existence in modern times requires strong minds and bodies. Disease will come sometime, but in most instances, if we possess a strong heredity and recognize diseased conditions early and do the things we know to check the condition as early as possible, generous nature will restore our health.

Dr. William Oster wrote an essay called "Aerodermatitis" which we should all ponder. "Sufficient unto the day is the evil thereof. Count your blessings, make the best of what you have, do the best you can do, and refuse to worry. Do this and though you may be hampered by disease you will still possess good health and happiness."

Short Cuts

A coarse-grained cake may be the result of too little mixing, too slow baking; too much fat, too much baking powder.

A delicious luncheon sandwich is made by buttering two slices of bread and filling the sandwich with deviled ham, dip the sandwich into a mixture of egg and milk, using one egg to half a cup of milk. Now saute the slices in butter until brown on both sides. Serve hot.

Guide to Charm

Slow Tanning Best Way to Protect Skin

By JACQUELINE HUNT

MID-JUNE finds us scurrying to the beaches for our share of the salt water, sun, and games of the summer. We all of us want to tan enough to look vivid and healthy, but you will find that the wise ones avoid the deep bronzing that many want in for last summer.

Too much sun and exposure thickens the skin, and makes it less youthful and adaptable. It encourages little lines around the eyes and mouth, and makes you look older than you are. Take care to protect your skin.

All of the leading cosmetics are telling how. The first essential is a good suntan oil.

If you are thin-skinned and freckle or burn rather than tan, have a big jar of sunburn protective cream or a lotion that will screen out the burning rays of the sun. Take along a big floppy straw hat, a beach umbrella, and plenty of large towels. Avoid the midday sun.

There is a good time for a snooze under the umbrella, of course. Sun glasses are an essential if you spend much time on the beach, and get the full slate of the sun.

MISS HUNT

You can keep clean cool and fresh-looking on the beach if you make it a habit to use scented eau de Cologne after your morning and evening bath. You might choose a cool-scented like or lavender tonic water and use it the entire summer. Use a good anti-perspirant or deodorant regularly if you go in for swimming or outdoor sports.

Just before you go out into the sun, apply the suntan oil or cream, smooth it evenly and dust just enough powder to subdue some of the shine. If you are anxious to prevent freckling use more of the oil or creamy preparation and powder more heavily.

The oil or cream keeps your skin soft and fine in texture while you acquire a good color. While you are at the beach, or on a boat or golf links, renew your suntan preparations frequently. Be sure to use them liberally over your back, arms, neck shoulders and legs, too, if you want an all-over even tan.

And here's my oft-repeated warning: Do not try to do all of your tanning at once. Do it gradually if you want a really even tan. Make your first three or four trips to the beach a short, easy swim, to which a few drops of ammonia have been added will make the hairs lighter. This also coarsens them, so they are by no means invisible. Be extra careful about cleansing your face. You must remove the material that clogs the pores with a comfortable cloth.

Electrolysis is the only method of removing hair permanently and this is not practical for anyone.

QUESTION: "In a restaurant the other evening, I saw a waitress assist a man with his coat.

Was this the correct thing to do?" —B. R."

ANSWER: If a man were disabled, such as from a heart attack, he might be in trouble but, if he is not, it is not wise to interfere.

The color passion for the moment is purple. It's everywhere and in all shades and tints. It is especially good looking in fuchsias and is interesting in prints because it is a rarity there.

For evening frocks what is there lovelier than all-white?

Not women seem to agree since there is a great demand for all-white or white-and-black.

It's not news that style is a watching eye on England, especially for country clothes.

With such gowns as at the Jubilee it is only natural that evening clothes should be wanted, too. It depends on what you are, top in London or that's coming.

It's a new claim in England that romantic, or round, or daytime frock, from the front of the dress to the back and there is a full fabric back, having a large large pocket at the back.

For a girl who is tall, your best woman is a fairly simple outfit with a hint of drama in the shoulder line

and with low-cut neckline.
